ICC TO HOLD 14TH GENERAL ASSEMBLY VIRTUALLY IN 2022

By: ICC

On November 15, 2021, the ICC Executive Council held a virtual special meeting to discuss and decide upon the format of the 14th ICC General Assembly in light of the ongoing Covid-19 pandemic.

ICC CONCLUDES “EEE WORKSHOPS” TO DEVELOP CIRCUMPOLAR PROTOCOLS FOR EQUITABLE AND ETHICAL ENGAGEMENT OF INUIT COMMUNITIES AND INDIGENOUS KNOWLEDGE

By Linda Lyberth Kristiansen and Tukumminnguaq N. Olsen

November 18, 2021 – Anchorage, Alaska – Over the course of three months this fall ICC held a series of online workshops to aid in the development of the Inuit Circumpolar International protocols for the Equitable and Ethical Engagement (EEE) of Inuit communities and Indigenous Knowledge. Around 35 nominated Inuit Delegates from across Inuit Nunaat took part in the workshop series.

During the final day of the workshop series, held November 18, 2021, ICC Chair, Dr. Dalee Sambo Dorough shared in her closing remarks, “For decades, in the name of science, actions have been taken to ultimately disrespect or exploit Indigenous knowledge or take it out of context for other purposes. Indigenous knowledge, and Indigenous knowledge holders must be recognized and respected by all others. Moving forward, this work will help us to make clear to all others that it is necessary to respect and recognize the important standards necessary to secure the ethical, equitable, fair, and just use of our knowledge. This work is about our rights of ownership, possession, control, development, and protection of our knowledge.”

The protocols will be a crucial tool in advancing Inuit sovereignty, directions, and priorities at national levels and within institutions and international fora, such as the Arctic Council and United Nations.

A draft final document is expected to be circulated to all ICC member organizations in early 2022 for a one-month review process. The final draft is scheduled to be submitted to the ICC Executive Council by the spring of 2022 for approval and released to the public prior to the 14th ICC General Assembly. The primary intention of the protocols is to aid in international work. Additionally, the protocols will be useful to all those interested in working within Inuit Nunaat, working through meaningful partnership with us, will aid to foster equitable and ethical engagement of our communities and knowledge, and will further support Inuit sovereignty.

BASICALLY OUR CULTURE SHOULD BE THE MAIN VALUE

By: Tukumminguaq Olsen, ICC Kalaallit Nunaanni allaffimmi ningioq.

ICC's Health Summit: "Good mental health is nature, food, family and being a part of a society. Basically, our culture"

The Inuit Circumpolar Council (ICC) is pleased to have concluded the virtual Inuit Health Summit from September 20 to October 26, 2021. The focus was on Links Between Inuit Culture and Health, especially talking about the prevention of youth suicide.

Half of the participants were youth, and the other half were organizations with regular contact with youth. Participants from Greenland were among Paarisa, Center for Human health, Child Rights Institution - MIO, Sorlak, Students from Greenland University, and other youth interested, Greenland Red Cross – INUA.

"As Inuit, we know cultural continuity is a protective factor against suicide," ICC Chair Delee Sambo Dorough. "The Inuit Health Summit is a space where youth can openly discuss what supports and doesn't support their connection to culture and foster a space where we all belong."

Inuit Summit on Health and Well-being focuses on efforts and initiatives to reduce and eradicate health disparities harming our families and prioritizing mental wellness, addictions, and suicide prevention. Erni Kristiansen, from Greenland Red Cross - Inua says: My best memory was when we had a topic about our strengths as a community. I have been reminded that our top priorities for good mental health are still nature, food, family, and being a part of society. Basically, our culture."

The 2021 ICC Health was held with over 50 Inuit from across Inuit Nunaat (Alaska, Canada, Chukotka, Greenland). They include youth, Elders, The Circumpolar Inuit Health Steering Committee members, and ICC leaders. Their words will be graphically recorded to be shared widely and help guide the work of policymakers, program managers, and other leaders in mental wellness.

EMERGING LEADERS' RECOMMENDATIONS TO ICC

By: Linda Lyberth Kristiansen

On the 8th of October 2021, The ICC Emerging Leaders hosted a virtual Focus Group Meeting to discuss ways to improve youth engagement in ICC Greenland with Inuit across the Arctic; Canada, Alaska, Greenland, and Chukotka.

The ICC Emerging Leaders hosted a Virtual Focus Group to overview the draft recommendations on engaging youth in ICC.

Inuit, from 18 to 35 ages, were encouraged to participate, provide feedback on the proposals, and present to ICC at the 14th ICC General Assembly.

The youth discussed their interests and values in the Arctic, what ICC should focus more on and how ICC can improve youth engagement.

In this regard, The Emerging Leaders wanted to hear the opinions of the Inuit youth on what they think of the drafted recommendations.

The Focus Groups are for Inuit to discuss their current issues and priorities and develop recommendations in their communities on ways to engage Inuit in ICC Greenland. Everyone was welcome to observe or listen to the discussions. Each country had a local meeting. At ICC Greenland, we had a hybrid meeting at ICC Greenland's office.

The local Focus Group meeting went well. We had some youth joining us on zoom and a good turnout at the office.

We spent 2,5 hours talking about the recommendations, sharing opinions, discussing on the topics, their concerns, and getting feedback on the recommendations. It was a successful meeting, and good inputs on the ICC's Emerging Leaders' recommendations.

INTERNSHIP AT ICC

Written by: Tukumminnguaq N. Olsen

Master's Student in Culture and Social History from Ilisimatusarfik-University of Greenland, Linda Lyberth Kristiansen, was from the beginning of September including December did an internship at ICC's office in collaboration with the Section of Human Rights (IMR).

During Linda's BA studies in Culture and Social History at the University of Greenland, she chose to write her bachelor's thesis on Indigenous Peoples' Rights in Greenland. She is now a graduate student. During Linda's intern at ICC, she followed the work, attended the meetings, and participated in administrative procedures. During her period at ICC, she gained knowledge of Inuit and indigenous Peoples' knowledge. She worked on equality, ethics, and inclusion of Inuit knowledge and contributed to the work of ICC guidelines. She made follow-ups on Arctic Council meetings, preparing meetings, hearings, and meetings among the youth and the general public, to ensure that the youth is taking part in the ICC's work and work within the Indigenous Peoples' rights.

“As I wrote my bachelor's thesis, my focus was very much within the indigenous peoples' rights in Greenland, and naturally, my interest was centered in ICC. I found ICC's work very interesting and wanted to work more with it. I have learned so much during my internship at ICC and still am, learning something new every day. Learning more about ICC's work and procedures and the knowledge there is fascinating. I have gained much personally and professionally, like the information I got regarding the Inuit rights throughout Inuit Lands.

The international perspective on indigenous peoples' rights is very enlightening. During my time at IMR (The Section of Human Rights), I learned much about the working procedures regarding human rights and the partners involved, giving me much insight into the work. I think it is essential to know of your rights and of Inuit's position as I believe that it is crucial to know of your origin and identity as Inuit as they are essential tools in our future. For example, I can mention the united strength among Inuit, connectedness, and mutual understanding are vital in work. I indeed will bring these with me in my future career. “

ICC wants to bring Linda Lyberth Kristiansen a tremendous appreciation for her time and work and choose ICC's given Internship. ICC is open to providing an internship next year in the winter period. Students interested in internships at ICC, contact for more information: icgreenland@inuit.org
